Lumber Man Resigns After Twenty-Five Years

After twenty-five years of faithful service, C. D. Griffiths, local manager of the Kerkhoff-Cuzner Mill & Lumber Company, has resigned so as to enable him to devote his entire attention to his extensive ranch interests, 20 acres of orange grove, on Broadway. As a token of the esteem in which Mr. Griffiths was held by the officers of the company, he has been notified that while his resignation, which was accepted with regret, would take effect immediately, his salary would continue until September 1.

Mr. Griffiths came to California from Oregon in 1893. At that time he entered the employ of the company in the Azusa yards, being appointed manager of the Covina office in 1901, which position he has filled to the present time. In 1895 Mr. Griffiths married Miss Olive Pollard, a daughter of one of the pioneer families of this valley, since which time they have been prominent in the social life of the community.

W. J. Evans, manager of the Azusa yard, has assumed temporary charge of this district, but it is expected that the company will place a new man in permanent charge here in the near future.

LECTURER AT LOCAL CHURCH ATTRACTING LARGE CROWDS

Elder D. L. Miller, journalist, lecturer and evangelist, has been attracting large audiences at the Brethren church during the past week, where he has been delivering a series of travel lectures, the material for which was gathered during his visits to the Holy Land.

His address tonight will describe his stay for many months in "The Holy City," which he has visited six times, familiarizing himself with the habits and customs of the people.

Next week he will deliver a series of evangelistic sermons. Special music is provided each evening, commencing at 7:15 o'clock.

Mayor Names Victory Memorial Committee

Chairman R. A. Welch of the board of city trustees, at the regular session of the board on Tuesday, appointed a "victory memorial committee," composed of D. F. Stafford, J. L. Matthews, J. H. Coolman, J. M. Stanton, and C. S. Beardsley, whose duties it will be to erect a lasting memorial to the men of the Covina high school district who have entered the military or naval service during the war. Covina has over 175 men to her credit.

It has been suggested that the memorial shall be in the character of a bronze tablet, containing the names of the men, and that the monument in which it shall be placed shall be erected on the lot owned by the city on the corner of Citrus and College streets. It is the wish of the city trustees that the monument be dedicated with fitting ceremonies on the forthcoming Decoration day, which is less than ninety days away.

ORNITHOLOGIST INJURED BY GUN EXPLOSION

A. B. Howell, whose reputation as an ornithologist extends far beyond the borders of California, was injured at his ranch on Grand avenue, in recovering from a serious wound which he received through an explosion of a gun several weeks ago while hunting for winter birds in the mountains above Camp Bahly. The explosion badly tore the flesh and muscles of his left hand. He has been recuperating from the accident at the home of his father-in-law, a physician of Pasadena.

Ladies Entertain With Tea and Musicales

On Tuesday afternoon of this week Mrs. J. P. Ladd and Mrs. Belle Harris entertained with a Japanese tea and musicale at the home of Mrs. Belle Harris on North Second street in honor of Mrs. G. W. Thompson of Los Angeles, formerly of Covina, and Mrs. A. Laude of Covina.

The guests were attired in Japanese kimono and made a charming picture in their embroidered gowns of many tints and shades.

Miss Crete King and Mrs. Roy Goodell opened the program with a piano duet, "Mikado March," Mrs. Carl F. Clapp read a paper giving the lives of Gilbert and Sullivan, the writers of the lyrics and music of the comic opera, "The Mikado." The story of the opera, cleverly written by Mrs. Ladd, was read by Miss Cavanaugh. Parts of some of the numbers of the opera were splendidly sung by Miss Gertrude Hale, Mrs. C. A. Foreman, Miss Elder, Miss Green, all well-known solo artists of Covina; and Mrs. Chew, Mrs. Goodell, Mrs. Laude and Mrs. Clapp made their initial appearance as solo singers and surprised their friends with their fine singing. Miss Crete King was the accompanist. Refreshments of Japanese cakes and tea were served.

Explosion at Laundry Startles Neighborhood

Jack Kennedy, engineer at the Troy laundry, was painfully burned about the face, shoulders and hands on Wednesday morning by an explosion of gas in the boiler furnace. The explosion, which did some damage to the boilers, was heard for a distance of several blocks from the laundry. The injured man was treated at the offices of Drs. Reed, Jennings & Reed, and later removed to the Pomona hospital. The burns, although very painful, were of a surface character, the injured man losing most of his hair.

The management states that the engineer reported that the gas had been irregular during the morning, and the cause of the explosion was due to the accumulation of gas in the furnace by the temporary shutting off of the supply.

Kennedy is a married man with a home in Los Angeles. He assumed his new duties at the laundry only on Monday morning.

You must not miss hearing "Princess Balbul" at the high school Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22.

The 55th ammunition train contains a good many Covina boys and the news of its return has been anxiously looked for.

Splendid Setting For "Old Wives for New"

Gorgeous sets, embracing scenes in a New York cafe, mountain views, and beautiful interiors of a fashionable home, are features of "Old Wives for New," the superb photoplay, which is to be the attraction at the Star theater tonight and tomorrow.

Cecil B. De Mille directed this picture with great skill and careful attention to detail. The novel from which Jeanie Mapherson constructed the scenario was written by David Graham Phillips.

The story is one which searches into the souls of men and women and shows the inner workings of mind and conscience in an unusual tangle of circumstances. A man's efforts to remain true to his wife who has lost all her pride in personal appearance; his later attempts to defend from the tongue of scandal a really noble woman who loves him; the attitude of his children toward father and mother when divorce is sought—these vital problems offer a splendid lot of material, to which Mr. De Mille has done full justice.

Red Cross

A bugle call sounds again for Red Cross workers! It is a patriotic, urgent call. It is a call to the Covina branch of the Red Cross. It is for one and all.

During the last few months there has been a misapprehension regarding the local work. It is thought by many that since the war is over there is no further need for Red Cross effort on the part of the people of Covina. But there is a need. Not so great, thank God, as there was six months ago, but still a pressing need.

During the year and a half of war the Covina branch won enviable prestige for its steadfast work and for the results attained. Then when the epidemic of influenza created a new emergency the Red Cross arose to the occasion. The reputation thus made must not be allowed to be lowered. We must not be slackers at the end. We must not be quitters before the end.

This is the situation; this is the need as outlined by those in authority in the Los Angeles chapter, of which we have been a dependable part: Knitting for refugee children and old women of Belgium and France is greatly needed. There is wool on hand to supply all knitters. Mrs. Wm. Bowring of our own branch has just brought to headquarters an ample supply. Knitters are urged to come to the rooms Wednesday and Friday, when the wool will be supplied and full directions given as to the knitting. Three sizes of stockings for children, three sizes of sweaters, children's mufflers and square shawls such as the peasant women wear over their heads. These latter can be either knitted or crocheted. In the latter manner a shawl can be made very quickly, 45 inches square, of khaki or grey, trimmed with any color the knitter desires, bearing in mind that the French women as a rule do not like to wear red nor do the children.

The quota for the Los Angeles chapter is 10,000 such garments. Covina must do her share. Honor marks will be given to those branches doing the best work. So, Covina knitters, fall in line! Get busy!

Covina men, your help and interest, too, is needed. It is hoped and confidently expected that by June the work will be complete, the rooms so long used solely for Red Cross work may be used for some other purpose, a big business closed. The desire is to close it with honor to Covina. Funds are still needed to carry on this work until that time.

The daily papers often have reports of the work as complete; or returned soldiers, in good faith, will say there is no further need. They have not been over the entire devastated territory, so they do not know. It is necessary to ignore inaccurate, unauthorized reports and go to headquarters for information. Mrs. McLeish, who is head of the Pacific division, has been in Washington to learn the needs. She states emphatically that we must carry on till June.

At the regular meeting of the Red Cross board Tuesday evening, there was a good attendance, and in an hour much important business was transacted, with Mr. W. H. Collins, president of the branch, in the chair. Every Red Cross member is invited to these meetings, which are held the first Tuesday of each month at the headquarters on Citrus avenue.

The last of the bills for the emergency hospital were ordered paid, that entire venture being brought to a most satisfactory conclusion. Articles loaned for use at the hospital are now at headquarters and may be secured by their owners any Wednesday or Friday afternoon. At this time the rooms are open and workers are urged to come for sewing as well as knitting.

Those who still have articles borrowed from the hospital during the epidemic are urged to return them at once.

There is for sale cheap, two beds, a stove, a refrigerator, underwear, night garments worn only once and well laundered, a few sheets and other things of lesser value. The laundry mark of the hospital was 52. Make sure that none such is inadvertently among your own things. The hospital, created in such haste, in such need, often engaged in matters of life and death, left little time for the staff to look after the details. Thus considerable linen has been misplaced. These things are of great value to the Red Cross now that money is needed to carry on the local work.

Azusita Agitators Are Quickly Convicted

Marking the tenth conviction as the result of the strike trouble started by I. W. W. and Bolshevik agents in the upper San Gabriel valley, seven of the agitators Tuesday were found guilty of disturbing the peace by a jury in the court of Justice Bouldin of Azusita.

The seven are Ramon Reheles, David Ormo, P. Flores, Corina Delgado, Martin Ruiz, Pastisi Martinez, and J. Jaramilla. They were among the first forty arrested when the agitation at Azusita began. The jury was out but fifteen minutes.

The trial of the seven started last Friday and continued through Monday and Tuesday. The prosecution was conducted by Deputy District Attorneys Donnison and Glover. J. H. Ryckman represented the disturbers.

Others who so far have been convicted are M. Goldberg, sentenced to thirty days for disturbing the peace; Manuel Sastre, sentenced to thirty days for the same offense, and a man who was convicted for beating an aged farmer who offered him work.

The men were accused of congregating in front of the orange grove of Ida Wright, near Azusita, on February 5, and creating a disturbance in an effort to incite the orange pickers to strike. As soon as the men were arrested the I. W. W. and Bolshevik agents, it was said, set about to obtain their release on bail. This they did, furnishing $500 for each man. They are out on bail now.

During the trial it was shown by Deputy Donnison that a Russian Bolshevik agent was in the neighborhood a week before the disturbance and that he passed among the men who afterward were arrested. This man was said to have been sent from the I. W. W. Bolshevik headquarters in Los Angeles.

County citrus growers believe that by the action of the jury the backbone of the agitation among the orange pickers has been broken. The Mexicans themselves have not been inclined to strike, being satisfied with the wage they are getting, which nets them between $3 and $4 a day.

FRANCE MUCH IN NEED OF HELP

Myron T. Herriek, former ambassador to France, in his addresses before representative men and women of Southern California, strongly urges a continuation of the work done by the French War Relief Society.

"There is no doubt or question," he says, "about there being a great task left in France for American relief workers to accomplish. We have made a good beginning, but France wants us to continue, and carry to successful termination the work we have started. There is a great need over there yet. Much of the land is in devastated condition, and as you know, France has lost 2,500,000 men. We owe it to France to remain and help if she needs and wants us, and she has said she does."

In his capacity as president of the American Relief Society Gov. Herriek is very active in his rehabilitation plans for France, and has made public a communication received from M. de Milly, French high commissioner to the United States, in which is said in part: "I am now able to urge you to go ahead as quickly as possible with your generous plans, and to complete your organization if it is not already complete. Assuring you that we appreciate very deeply the cooperation you are offering toward the rehabilitation of our devastated regions, I beg to remain, dear Mr. Herriek,

"Yours very sincerely,
"DE MILLY."

A letter written in France the last of December, has been sent to Pasadena, thinking that branch of the war relief society for its aid.

All the Covina donations go forward through Pasadena, so it is with both pride and pleasure that the skillful workers of the local chapters hear the direct results of their labor.

Now that peace negotiations are under way there are some people who believe there is nothing more we can do, but Covina feels the refugees must not be neglected; and to that end the local French Relief work rooms, under the efficient leadership of the president, Mrs. E. E. Kirtlan, are open daily except Saturdays, from 2 until 4. Helping to provide for the stricken people is a humanitarian task in which every woman in Covina should be proud to have a part.

Let us continue to the end. Let us keep our pledge to France.

LOUISE P. JENNINGS.

MILITARY POWER RESPONSIBLE FOR WAR SAYS LIEUTENANT DOUGLAS

Neuwied, Germany.
February 2, 1919.

Fear Father:

Received today your letter mailed Dec. 31. I can well imagine that you have not had much time for letter writing. I received Jane's very good letters and am certainly appreciative of the news from home. I look forward with much eagerness to the time when I can see all of you again.

Well, the dear old third corps is still in line with the same three divisions, the 1st, 2nd, and 32d. The third corps aviation still has the first and third balloon companies. The first aero squadron is across the river, and only a few minutes from my office. My new major took sick (not seriously) two weeks ago and now is down at Nice for several weeks on a sick leave. I am acting corps air service commander in his absence. It keeps me here rather close, but I can always get an officer from the squadron to take my place if I go away for a day, which, however, is very seldom. We are having maneuvers now in the divisions, and the aviation is taking part. Their part, however, depends on the weather. We have been having some real winter lately. There is snow on the ground and the visibility is usually very poor. I proved that flying a few days ago, when we kept running through cloud banks where you could not see anything. I was piloting the dual control, so noticed it especially. We are especially anxious to get some fine weather as we want to photograph some of this beautiful country along the Rhine. I have a fair collection of aerial photographs which I am going to bring back with me.

Friday I went to Cologne. I had been up once before in the evening, but had not seen the city in daylight. It is a very nice city. The cathedral is magnificent. The British are very good as an army of occupation. They treat the population very well. They are gentlemanly about the business, but they do at times let the Germans know that they fought on the side that won the war. I was out to the aviation field. Nine R. A. F. squadrons are located there. They are great stunt fliers. Over seventy per cent of their fliers, I am told, are Canadians. They have a nice officers' club in Cologne. I was able to get some good English tobacco.

This letter has suffered a break of several hours, and the hour is now late. I accepted an invitation from my German people here where I live to come in and talk, and drink a little Rhine wine. Both of them are very intelligent. The man is a lawyer and a justice, and his wife is a leader among the women under the new franchise law that gives women the vote. There are four children, three in high school, and they are well behaved. They can talk English, and with the use of a dictionary, we had some fine arguments carried on in a friendly manner. They have their own convictions and were interested to hear my opinions. I did not hesitate to tell them why their people were called Huns. I told them that starting the use of gas was in itself a reason. I really think that they were not satisfied that gas was not first employed by the French. Public opinion has been well controlled during the war, and these people do not give credence to many incidents of extreme cruelty and inhumanity that are well known facts. You may think it strange that I could sit down and talk this thing over, but you must remember that these people are thoroughly human. They are not pleasant for the sake of propaganda, because we frankly have our differences of opinion. It is Germany's absolute control of censorship by the military powers that made it possible to bring on the war, and mold public opinion. They had their share of hardships and inconveniences, but I must say that they did not go the limit like some other peoples I know would have done. They realize who won this war, and are aware that German military power is broken, and that they have a tremendous debt to meet for many generations to come. There is no feeling here that we should relent at all with any of them, but I cannot conjure up a hatred for an intelligent people who were forced into a fight by a military autocracy which was all-powerful. Enough of this talk about the German people. When the war stopped we were about to give them a terrible beating, and they knew it.

I have not yet received the papers you mention having sent. I hope they come through, as it is interesting to get the news. The peace conference is the most interesting subject at present. It is a big order to get everything straightened out.

I suppose that many of the boys are home by now. It is rather odd that neither Gordon or I are among the early ones. I am going down to see him as soon as my major gets back. He was at Grandpre on his surveying of soldiers' graves the last letter received.

You mention that many friends have sent their regards. I thank them. Love to Auntie and Jane.

Your loving son,

HOWARD.

P. S.—Your real estate sales for the month are surely phenomenal. I congratulate you on your splendid success for the year, and again wish you many happy returns of your birthday.

BIBLE STUDY QUESTIONS.

The second letter to the Thessalonians, which is the study for this week, was written shortly after the first one. Paul is still in Corinth. The church of Thessalonica is suffering persecution. They seem to be anticipating the speedy return of the Lord and this anticipation is so strong that they have ceased to work and are in more or less confusion. Paul writes to correct this condition.

Friday: Read 1:1-4. Who was with Paul when he wrote this? Compare I. Thess. 1:1, also Acts 17:15; 18:1,5. Read again the third verse. For what two qualities is he thankful? What sort of faith was theirs? What sort of charity or love? Think of what these expressions mean.

Saturday: Read 1:4-12. What are the Thessalonians undergoing? What is this a token of? What cause are they suffering for? What is their hope of relief?

Sunday: Read 2:1-12. This passage is a fine poetic description of the course that history must take before the ultimate triumph of Christ. Read it several times thoughtfully. Notice the warning against a too eager expectation. What must precede Christ's return? Notice the description of the Man of Sin, supposed by many to be to Nero, who later caused Paul to be executed. Who will destroy the wicked one? Who are they that perish?

Monday: Read 2:13-15. Notice the contrast between verses 12 and 13. In the one "damned," "believed not," "unrighteousness;" in the other "beloved of the Lord," "salvation," "sanctification," "belief." What is the means of salvation? What is the end?

Tuesday: Read 2:16-17. What hath the Lord given us? Through what? What two things are prayed for? Memorize these verses.

Wednesday: Read 3:1-5. What two prayers does Paul request for himself? What prayer does he make for

Go West!

Many years ago, when a certain young man, fired with a laudable ambition to better his condition and an earnest desire to lay the foundation of his own fortune, asked Horace Greeley's advice, that venerable seer, with characteristic abruptness replied, "Young man, go west!"

For many a decade the value of that advice and Greeley's prophetic foresight have been demonstrated by an ever-increasing flow of humanity from the crowded cities of the east to the land of the setting sun. At the time that advice was given, Chicago was considered to be the extreme limit of western civilization, until in time it became as overcrowded as the cities of the east, from which the venture-some travellers had fled. Again "Westward Ho!" became the slogan of the restless ones and so it has continued down to the present time until at last the great Pacific ocean has fixed the limit of western progress with the mute command, "thou shalt not go any further."

As the years roll by, the result of this ever increasing migration is becoming more and more apparent. Attracted by a semi-tropic climate from the cold and discomforts of the east, wage earners, home builders and pleasure seekers are crowding into California in ever increasing numbers as the years go by, and its charming attractions become more universally known. This year, and possibly for several years to come, this influx of visitors will be greater than ever, for the embargo on ocean travel, which at the present time practically prohibits the people of this continent from visiting European countries, will necessarily force those who wish to travel and have the means, to come west for the change which a trip across the Atlantic, to the old countries of Europe, has hitherto provided.

Among the thousands who will flock to this country, there will be many idle drifters, but the vast majority, outside of those who come for pleasure and the enjoyment of the restful influence of our Southern California climate, will be of the sturdy empire building class. As a result of this, mercantile, manufacturing and agricultural industries will be developed as never before and with the steady influx of people of brain and brawn, land values will be increased and unsettled districts populated and made productive.

With the march of modern improvement and broader experience, the old proverb, "A rolling stone gathers no moss," has been given a new interpretation, and the old mossbacks have given place to the more up-to-date believers in the theory and practice of rolling onward from the musty old traditions and customs of by-gone times to the new and aggressive principles of advancement.

Of such will be the empire builders of the golden west—men who believe in moving, reclaiming and developing, instead of accumulating a coating of moss, like an unused rolling stone, of no use to any one and only serving as an indication of decay.

Even the thousands of "rolling stones" who come for pleasure and recreation will be serving a good purpose, for they will return to their homes in all parts of the world satisfied that they got what they came for and become enthusiastic boosters for California.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phillips of East Badillo street entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Webb, Mr. and Mrs. William Viney, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Milliken, and Mr. Robert Phillico.

GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT GREAT SUCCESS

At least once during each club year, an especially attractive evening program is arranged by the members of the Monday Afternoon club for the husbands, and last Monday evening's delightful affair was one of the most successful ever held. About two hundred were present and the evening was particularly enjoyed as a social occasion, members and friends meeting and greeting each other. Many new faces were noticed, as the large number of recently admitted members brought a number of friends and guests for the first time to a club evening.

The decorations were particularly artistic, a Japanese effect being secured by the use of quantities of bamboo, pampas grass and fine greenery, the stage being banked in green, while neneia and ferns were used elsewhere. Large bowls of spring daffodils were placed upon the small tables which were scattered about the auditorium, which was arranged in semi-parlor fashion for the evening and a single large cluster of delicate tinted peach blossoms gave a touch of color to the stage. Mrs. McHann and Mrs. H. F. Larkin were in charge of the effective decorating.

After a happy little speech of welcome given by the club president, Mrs. J. L. Matthews, the program for the evening was begun with an instrumental trio giving selections from "Rigoletto." With Mrs. Henry Damerd at the piano, Miss Ollie Jones of Glendora, with her violin and Mr. Fred Preston with his clarinet, the music had a spirit and snap which was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Ronald Taylor gave a fine tenor solo, "Danny Boy," by Weathersly, accompanied by Mr. Alice Anderson, whose sympathetic playing is always particularly enjoyed by music lovers. Miss Lucile Barnes, a student of the Connaock school of Los Angeles, gave a charming reading, "Madam Butterfly," responding with a bright encore. A baritone solo was next on the program given by Mr. Robert Brown, his selection being "Friend O'Mine" by Sanderson. Miss Barnes delighted everyone with a highly amusing number, "The Pudding," responding again with an encore. The remarkable war song, "The Americans Come," was spiritedly sung by Mr. Brown and the program ended by a selection by the trio, "An Egyptian Ballet." Refreshments were served following the program and the entire evening was a great success.

Next Monday, the regular program will be given in the evening, instead of the afternoon, since the speaker, Major J. B. Coulston, of Pasadena, was not able to come in the daytime. But the change in time will benefit many of the friends of the club, since the meeting will be thrown open to the public, everyone being invited to hear Major Coulston, who was in charge of Red Cross work in France for several months, having just returned. His subject will be "Some of my Experiences Overseas." The address will begin at eight. Special music has been planned for the evening and it is expected that an unusually large audience will greet the distinguished speaker.

THREE MILLION DOLLAR LUTHERAN CAMPAIGN IS ON

The Lutheran Laymen's League, an organization of influential laymen of the Missouri synod, has launched a drive for a three million endowment fund among the communicant members of its own synod, the income of which will be used to support the synod's incapacitated pastors, professors, teachers, and the widows and orphans of the deceased. The plan for collecting this amount is briefly stated following: The members of said synod have enthusiastically subscribed for a large number of Liberty bonds. Almost every congregation knows the approximate amount of Liberty bonds purchased by its members. The Lutheran Laymen's League suggests that all congregations be asked to raise a sum which would equal at least 10 per cent of the Liberty bonds purchased by their own members and donate the same to the endowment fund.

A campaign for this amount is on. The money should be raised by an intensive campaign or drive of two weeks, from March 30 to April 12, preceded by an educational campaign conducted by the campaign executive committee of the Lutheran Laymen's League.

This committee is receiving enthusiastic support from all parts of the U. S. A. Last Monday evening the Lutherans of Southern California met at the Trinity church, 18th and Cherry streets, Los Angeles. The local St. John's congregation was represented by Mr. P. Maurer and J. Tschner. The following resolutions were adopted: "The past support of the superannuated pastors and teachers has been entirely insufficient; to support the plan of the Lutheran Laymen's League." There was not a dissenting voice heard in the meeting, as each delegate pledged himself to support the plan to the best of his ability.

ROLLING STONES.

A rolling stone gathers no moss it is said. And sometimes the saying is true: When applied to a person by idleness led. Then I can believe it is too. But when our forefathers came over the sea, Did they chant the old proverb and quake? No! they toiled and they left us this land of the free As a proof, for sweet liberty's sake. When back to the east, the south and the north, Went the tidings of wealth in the west; The sturdy and strong came hurrying forth, With labor and brains to invest; They knew some fortune would favor the brave, As the mountains and desert they crossed; No thought to the musty old proverb they gave. That a "rolling stone" gathers no moss.

Now what would this country of ours be I say, Were it not for the "rolling stones"? For the freedom and wealth we enjoy to-day, Isn't due to the lazy drones. What use to the world is the coating of moss, That grows all around an "old stone"? For in selfishness gathered 'tis nothing but dross, In the eyes of all men save his own.

We've heard of some people attaining great rank, And learning how fortunes are made; Who started in life beating mats at a bank, Or earning their bread with a spade. Did they let the grass grow up under their feet, Like slothful and lazy drones; Did they the dry bread of sheer idleness eat, Or lay round like mossy old stones? Work boys! to do something, try hard and you may; And do what you do with a will; Don't trust the old proverb, 'twill lead you astray, This world wasn't made to stand still.

A rolling stone's polished through being in use, Don't rust out in ease all your days; The world's rolling onward, you have no excuse, Then away with the mossy old phrase. —MALCOLM J. McCARTHY. Covina, California.

ABOUT EYESIGHT

Few people neglect an ache or a pain, but many overlook eye troubles, for defects of vision can usually only be found by a skilled optometrist. While an ordinary headache may be but a passing indisposition, all too frequently eyestrain, headache and nervousness are forerunners of serious eye trouble.

The FORDSON SERVICE PLEDGE

We realize that satisfactory, economical tractor operation depends on two factors. First, the strength, durability and economy of the tractor itself. Second, on being able to immediately secure parts and service work when occasion requires so that the tractor may be kept in operation every working day in the year.

We believe that it is just as much the duty of every Fordson distributor and dealer to keep parts and service instantly available wherever a Fordson is sold as it is for the Fordson Company to put good materials and workmanship into the tractor itself.

We want to make the pledge to every Fordson buyer that we will, by keeping complete stocks of parts and expert mechanics close at hand, help him in every way possible to get the best work and the most work out of his tractor and to avoid delays and lost time.

Fordson durable, dependable quality backed by such service as this is an unbeatable combination.

AMERICAN GIRLS IN MOTOR SERVICE II HAVE MAN'S SIZE JOBS IN FRANCE

That the American women in France who have been serving in the motor transport corps are not spending their time attending pink teas and other frivolities to which many of them have been accustomed, will be conceded by those who read the following letter recently received by Mrs. Westwood Collins of this city from her niece, Miss Josephine Wille of New York, now with the service in France:

January 27, 1919.

At last we are in France, Babs in Bouene, near Lyon, and I am stationed in Paris. Babs has something to do with a commissary and I am in the motor transport corps (M. T. C.). It is very interesting but very hard work. I drive from 7:30 a.m. until, well, until I am through. Sometimes it is 5:30 p.m. and sometimes it is 8 p.m. You drive anything and everywhere. I have carried wounded soldiers, hospital supplies, flowers in an officer's funeral procession, soldiers' baggage, and nearly every possible thing you could think of.

We live in Paris at a small hotel. We get up at 6 o'clock in the morning (no breakfast), walk two blocks, take a bus to the garage, which is at Neuilly, a suburb of Paris. Here we have a cup of black—oh, yes, very black—coffee and a piece of bread. On rare occasions a little butter. After you have swallowed this almost whole, you fill your car with essence—burns like gasoline, smells like gasoline, tastes like gasoline, but the French call it "essence." You also pour in a little oil and, if the day before anything sounded as if it were about to drop off, you screw it up. Each girl has a car assigned to her and keeps it until she smashes it beyond recognition, then if it wasn't wholly her fault, they deal out another car. I spent my second day at the garage inside and under my car; it runs like a top and is quieter than many of them.

I thought up to last week that it always rained in Paris, but I was agreeably disappointed—the sun has been out for nearly a whole week.

They started me to work my third day here and I have been at it ever since, every day except Sunday. I never liked Sunday as well as I do now. Thank goodness, the weeks aren't any longer—at night I am nearly dead. We have our good times, though—there are two or three dances every Saturday night. Last Saturday a Captain Constant, a M. T. C. man, took me to an officers' dance and I had a fine time. It was at the Louvre hotel, a fine floor and a military band without an equal. I don't go to dances during the week because, in the first place, I am too tired, and then it keeps me up too late. I do go to a movie once in awhile. Have met many nice men from all parts of the States—girls, too. The A. R. C. girls are from all over. My roommate, a Miss Thompson, comes from Pennsylvania. She is an awfully nice girl and we have lots of fun.

It is about one hundred per cent harder to drive in Paris than in any other city I have ever been in. The streets seem to run every which way without rhyme or reason and everyone drives so fast and there are no traffic laws and the people—well, nuntie, I hate to tell you what I think of them. They just step off the curb any place at all and walk straight in front of you. I have driven since 1913 and I French people are stone deaf. You can wear out a horn before they look at you. I have driven since 1913 and I never felt the strain I feel here. All the M. T. C. girls say the same thing. I never saw so many smashups; the streets are fairly decorated with them; mostly taxi drivers skidding in to lamp posts or trees or trying to occupy the same space with another taxi.

I studied French at school but I find it spoken a little more fluently here, strange to say. The other day a Frenchman jabbered something at me three times before I knew he was trying to give me an address, and even then it meant almost nothing. I have a little map of Paris and I gave him that. It was no use; he didn't know where the place was. So in (vile) French I asked him to write it. If it was on the map I would find it, and flinging it on the map meant that I could drive to it. I was there in an hour—Port Ivey, southeast of Paris. With this little map, a pencil and paper and a few words I can find most any place. At first it was rather hard, never having been here before, but it gets easier every day.

We had rather an exciting trip across the Atlantic on a very nice British transport. No chairs; the decks were covered with lifeboats and rafts. The ship was camouflaged gray, green, blue and black. It was built for travel between Australia and England, was not heated except for little electric heaters in out of the way corners. It stormed nearly all the way. Maybe you read about the storms in the papers about that time. We broke a rudder chain and rolled and pitched aimlessly about the millpond for twenty-four hours, both engines stopped, half the crew and most of the passengers sick. Bathrooms were broken and we had several floods. The old ship leaked all over anyway, so this was quite unnecessary, I thought. Some of the shells in the ammunition room had an argument and one of the officers told me it was a miracle that we weren't blown to splinters. We put out several distress signals, but no one paid any attention to them. One of the men on board went crazy. For twenty-four hours we were life preservers. Haven't you seen all this in the movies? I have, and it is the only place I want to see it again. Never again will I cross the Atlantic in a canoe if I can possibly help it. Babs and I never missed a meal; we ate everything in sight. We stayed on deck most of the time. We walked when it was calm enough, wrapped up in oilskins; sat on the deck and hung onto something bigger than we were for grim death during the worst storms. I had a strange trip across the ocean one day. I started to fall and grabbed a small table, thinking it was screwed to the floor, as most of the furniture was. This particular table was not, and I went flying through the air. While the flying lasted everything was all right, but it was most uncomfortable when we came to a sudden stop, jammed up against the wall. I fought shy of that table the rest of the voyage. For the first time I was really frightened while at sea, and one night I was sure would be our last. I wondered which would be the best direction to swim in. Even Babs, who has always had a strange liking for storms, actually said she had had enough.

We landed in Liverpool and were sent to Manchester. While there we visited Chester, that fascinating old walled city. After five days in Manchester we were sent to London, where we stayed a week and then came to Paris. Thank goodness, the English Channel isn't as large as the Atlantic ocean. There were no births for us. We were supposed to sleep in chairs all along the passageways below. All was well until about 12 o'clock, then the girls began to get seasick and I knew I would be if I stayed below, so went upon deck and stayed there all night. It was moonlight and not too cold if you kept moving. Finally I found a nice warm spot by the funnel and I curled up and went to sleep about 4 a.m. Twenty very tired girls got off the boat at Le Havre. No one had slept very much. We stayed in Le Havre all day and took the evening train to Paris. In two weeks Babs was sent to Bouene and I am still in Paris. I don't know how long I will be here or where I may be sent.

I will regret not being over here at least a year ago. In Paris you would hardly know there had been a war. You would never know that these people have endured what they have for four years. Less food is rationed here than in England, but everything is awfully high. We get no sugar, no desserts, no milk; that is, these things are not served to us, but we go to the army commissary and spend our last cent on sugar, "canned cow" and jam. I simply cannot drink French coffee without milk; it is worse than medicine. As it is the only thing we get for breakfast, the "canned cow" is a lifesaver to me.

Several people in the States advised me to bring sugar, but I was so rushed before leaving that I didn't get any, in fact I thought I could do without sugar easy enough. Have you ever gone without sugar? I don't suppose you have. Would you believe you get to a point where you actually crave it? In England we had absolutely no sugar, nothing sweet. They served rice and other puddings with no sweetening whatsoever. No sugar for tea, coffee, anything. Even the girls who didn't take sugar in tea or coffee craved it. They finally issued ration cards and each girl soon treasured a quarter pound bag of sugar. We still go to dinner with our sugar box and jam jar. I never ate so much jam in all my life. We eat it in place of butter and desserts. I wrote to mother for some George Washington coffee. I couldn't stand it before I left the States, but when you have been driving all day in cold, wet Paris, G. W. coffee tastes pretty good. Tommie and I invested in a cheap stove which burns solidified alcohol. I should say it burns when we can get the fuel. It is rather hard to get it here. Tommie brought some "thermo" with her and that worked beautifully in the little stove, but unfortunately Tommie didn't bring enough, and I didn't bring any, so the supply gave out last week. We are using some French stuff now which nearly smokes us out each time we use it. (Excuse me, Tommie is Miss Thompson, my roommate).

I get rather homesick here in this strange land with strange people with strange habits and strange language. But I didn't have to come, and I wouldn't have missed the opportunity for anything, and as long as I am needed I am going to stay. I wish they would give us shorter hours. The canteen and hospital but unit workers come back to the hotel and play and dance around at night, but the M. T. C. girls go from the dinner table to their beds, as a rule, just dead to the world.

Affectionately,
JOSEPHINE.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. G. Morris of Charter Oak that their nephew, Sergeant Nolan Morris, who has been in service in France with the 455th aero squadron for more than a year, has arrived in New York and expects to receive his discharge soon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Powers and family of Los Angeles are the guests this week of the latter's sister, Mrs. Steven Jacobs of Sunflower avenue.

Mr. Wheat, the assistant superintendent of schools for Los Angeles county, was a visitor at the Charter Oak school on Wednesday and expressed himself as much pleased with the work of the school and especially at the way in which the difficulties due to the long vacation enforced by the "flu" epidemic are being overcome. The eighth grade have done especially good work, having practically completed all the work which is accomplished in a normal term at this time.

The teachers of the school have just made a summing up of the money invested by the pupils in the Liberty bonds, war savings stamps and thrift stamps, and find that the 114 pupils enrolled have contributed $3,351.

There are three new pupils enrolled this week from the Masonic Home, Leland, Fred and Robert Prewett. Edith and Leonard Powers, whose home is on Sunflower avenue, are also new pupils this week.

Many questions have been asked lately concerning the operetta, "Princess Bulbul," but the only answer given was that it would be extraordinary entertainment, equally fascinating for both old and young. The unanswered questions may be answered only by actually seeing the operetta on March 21 and 22. There are two acts to the operetta, between which a novelty attraction will be "sprung." Now, just what this novelty will be remains to be seen on the 21st and 22nd. The tickets are now on sale and are being reserved at Nash's drug store. As a special inducement to the students to sell more tickets, a prize box of candy has been offered the student who sells the greatest number of tickets. Already this inducement has caused the students to sell many more tickets than they would have otherwise.

Tuesday afternoon Miss Grace Adams, the well-known Los Angeles cornetist, accompanied by Miss Van Vranken, presented an exceptionally fine program, some of which were the following numbers: "Polka," "Dear Boy O'Mine" (Ernest Ball; "Mummy's Lullaby" (Jamison); "I Love You Truly," Carrie Jacobs Bond. In addition, two popular selections were played, which the students sang.

Next Tuesday everyone is invited to attend the initial public performance of the high school's motion picture machine. The celebrated war photo-play, "Under Four Flags," will be shown. There will be two performances, one at 2:30 and one at 7:30. Everyone is invited to come and see this fine war film, free of charge.

Wednesday of last week, Covina's first and second teams beat Monrovia's teams, with the scores 19 to 3 for the first teams and 29 to 21 for the second teams.

Last Friday night the Covina basketball team played a practice game with Whittier, the state champions. The score of the first teams was 56 to 20 day afternoon the team was feeling better, because, at a double game with Alhambra and Monrovia, the first and second Covina teams both gained an easy victory over their opponents. The score of the first teams was 56 to 20 and of the second teams was 31 to 17.

Last week the Freshmen defeated the grammar school team with the score of 47 to 5.

The first league game will be with Monrovia at Alhambra on Wednesday, March 12. Judging from the scores last Monday, Covina has an easy chance of winning the first league game.

FOR CONTROL OF UGLINESS

Science Should Be Capable of Remedying or Preventing Defects, Either Physical or Mental.

Why is it that one member of a family is ugly or imperfectly developed, while all the others are practically perfect in form and features?

Nearly every family has its ugly member. If the defects happen to be physical the sufferer will be known as the runt of the family, or if the defects are of the morals, as the black sheep.

There are good and sufficient causes for all physical and moral ugliness and there is no reason why these causes may not be discovered and controlled.

Why should one member of a family be made sick by eating the same food the others eat and that he has often eaten before?

To say that it doesn't happen to agree with him may be satisfactory to some, but to the intelligent, inquiring physician it is not. There is something wrong with the human machine or it would produce proper results. To the mechanical engineer improper results are suggestive either of a lack of a portion of machinery that has failed to do its proper share of work or of a perversion of energy. The organ or portion of machinery that has failed to do its proper share of work has not been supplied with its proper share of nerve force.

May we not apply the same rules to the building up of the body and of the mind also?

BOHEMIA LAND OF PATRIOTS

Popular Idea Concerning the Country and Its People Has Been Far From the Truth.

When Shakespeare wrote of "the seacoast of Bohemia" he showed no cheerfulness or disregard of fact than most of us now do when we think of that richly storied country as a land of gypsies forever bent upon gay or wild adventures. "Bohemian" has stood for many an age as an appellation for carefree wanderers; yet as originally applied by the French it probably referred to the expatriated disciples of the Bohemian martyr, John Huss. Spiritual and patriotic fervor rather than lightheartedness are the traditional marks of this people, who after long generations of subjection to Tauton Austria are coming into their own.

Bohemia was the home of the Czechs for hundreds of years before Germanic invaders broke in upon its happy freedom, as early, indeed, as the sixth century before Christ. The Czechs' love of country and of liberty and their sense of Slavic kinship with their oppressed Slovak brethren dwelling near by never died or dimmed. Despite tyranny and persecution they have clung to pride in their past and to hope for their future; they have cherished their language, their literature and customs, their common faith and ideals.—Atlanta Journal.

Birch Bark.

The bark of the yellow birch can be compared with nothing else. The tree is unique among trees. The yellow birch, often better called the silver birch, has a bark more tinsel-like than that of any other tree. It seems to have been made for campers to admire, or perhaps, in an emergency, to use to kindle the camp fire. But do not allow the appreciation of the useful to overcome your appreciation of the beautiful. It is true that the bark may thus be used for kindling, and it is also probably true that the removal of the loose bark does not injure the tree, but such removal injures the beauty of the tree, as you then deprive it of its chief characteristic. The manner in which the bark breaks on the main trunk, expands and rolls back in ribbon-like curls and strips, which long remain attached and rustle in every passing breeze could not fail to elicit the admiration of every lover of the forest.

It is noticeable that on old trunks the character of the bark is different, as there it is roughened by irregular plate-like scales.—Boys' Life.

Canton a City of Canals.

At Canton, the oldest city in southern China, the river is, in effect, canalized, and the shipping is heavy and varied. The water is deep enough for ships of 1,000 tons burden as far as the city, but foreign boats come up only as far as Whampoa, nine miles to the southeast, where there are extensive docks. Here the loading and unloading is done by native boats. Vessels of deep draft lie outside the bar. Forty miles below is the Boca Tigris (Mouth of the Tiger), and the water widens into a wide estuary. Water divides the old from the new town and surrounds the island and the suburbs, where the Europeans live, so that Canton has an abundance of picturesque water life, including a big houseboat population.

Most Costly Gown.

What is the most valuable costume in the world? The New York Outlook asks, and says in answer: "An inventory of the dresses of queens, of the wives of the maharajahs of India, and of the princesses of fashion in every land would no doubt include costumes of fabulous value, but could any of them match two gowns mentioned in Theophile Gautier's 'Italy.' The sacristy of the cathedral at Milan contains a treasure which ought not to surprise those who have seen the wardrobe of Notre Dame at Toledo, Spain, in which a single robe covered with white and black pearls is worth 7,000,000 francs ($1,400,000), and yet that of Milan is fully as valuable."
